

Patrice Stephenson-Johnson

Associate

702-982-5879

stephenson-johnsonp@hallevans.com

Patrice Stephenson-Johnson is a civil litigator with over 20 years of wide-ranging experience. Patrice's practice includes hospitality & retail, transportation, premises liability, workers' compensation, and employment. She is also experienced in business litigation and transactions, regulatory compliance, and family law. She litigates on behalf of retailers, gig-economy companies, employers, insurers, corporations, and individuals.

Education

LLM: Temple University, James A. Beasley School of Law, 2004, International/Transnational Law

JD: University of Alabama School of Law, 2002

BS: University of Alabama at Birmingham, 1998, Criminal Justice, minor in History

Bar Admissions

Nevada, 2011

Alabama, 2003, inactive

U.S. District Court,
District of Nevada

U.S. District Court,
Northern and Middle
Districts of Alabama

Before Hall & Evans, Patrice worked at boutique insurance defense firms in Nevada, served as a Field Litigation Attorney with a global insurer, and maintained a solo civil and criminal practice. Patrice represents clients before administrative agencies, in mediations and arbitrations, and across state and federal courts in Nevada.

Career Distinctions & Honors

Outstanding/Solo Small Firm Award, National Bar Association Women Lawyers Division, 2024

Sam H. Hamner Academic Scholarship

Who's Who Among American Law Students, 2002

Alabama Public Interest Legal Association Grant Writing Award Recipient, 2000

Student Articles Editor, Law and Psychology Review, 2000-2002

Professional Associations

Southern Nevada Association of Women Attorneys

Professional Experience

Judicial Clerk Intern, The Honorable John E. Ott, United States Magistrate, Northern District of Alabama, Birmingham, AL, 2002

Other Activities

Patrice enjoys yoga, travel, and spending time with her family.